Vsebina:	Content (Syllabus outline):
Obravnavali bomo pojmovanja literature v teorijah diskurza. V ospredju bo vloga literature v teoriji govornih dejanj od Johna L. Austina prek Jacquesa Derrida do Judith Butler. Orisali bomo proces, ki vodi od Austinove konstitutivne izključitve estetskih izjav iz množice govornih dejanj do utemeljitve govornih dejanj prav na estetskih izjavah pri Judith Butler. Literatura se bo tako izkazala za diskurz, ki ga na eni strani mukoma izžene Austinova nomotetična, kritična znanost performativa, na drugi pa prav tako mukoma slavi idiografična, topična ekspertna vednost Judith Butler. Ta literaturi zadolžena kontinentalna recepcija Austinove analitične filozofije pa bo podlaga za predstavitev sodobnih literarnovednih obravnav literature kot diskurza.	This course deals with the conceptions of literature in discourse theories, in which the role of literature in speech act theories from John L. Austin via Jacques Derrida to Judith Butler is at the forefront. It outlines the process leading from Austin's constitutive exclusion of aesthetic statements from the multitude of speech acts to Judith Butler's substantiation of speech acts based precisely on aesthetic statements. Literature thus proves to be a discourse that is painfully banished by Austin's nomothetic, critical science of the performative on the one hand and that is just as painfully glorified by the idiographic and topic expert knowledge of Judith Butler on the other. This literature-committed continental reception of Austin's analytical philosophy serves as the basis for presenting modern literary-studies treatments of literature as a discourse.
